BE PART OF SOMETHING BEAUTIFUL

A woman with dark hair tied back is running on a paved path. She is wearing a light-colored, sleeveless crop top and colorful, patterned leggings. The background is a blurred cityscape at night, with numerous lights creating a bokeh effect. The sky is a deep blue, suggesting dusk or dawn. The path she is running on is bordered by a wooden railing and some greenery.

A couple is silhouetted against a bright, golden sunset sky. They are standing on the peak of a dark, rocky mountain. In the background, a range of mountains stretches across the horizon, also silhouetted against the light. The overall mood is peaceful and romantic.

SOME THINGS ARE Sacred.

In 1988, the Summa Corporation (now The Howard Hughes Corporation) traded 5,000 acres of undeveloped land to create what is now Red Rock Canyon National Conservation Area, preserving and protecting it forever. And Summerlin has been thriving in the peaceful shadows of these crimson rocks ever since.

Red Rock's 200,000-acre, federally protected playground is known internationally for its striking desert and mountain landscapes and more than 2,000 climbing routes that have earned it the distinction as one of the top five climbing destinations in the U.S. More than a dozen trails offer everything from easy family hikes to more adventurous outings with double-digit mileage and 1,000 feet of elevation gain. The area's 13-mile, paved scenic loop is also a hot spot for cyclists and runners.

Adventure enthusiasts travel across the globe to make memories here, and when you live in Summerlin, it's quite literally an extension of your own backyard.
